Brownie Troop 2121 Sends Gift to Korea

Troop Leader Mrs. Charles Welchner, Brownie Scouts Troop 2121 of River School, along with assistant leader, Mrs. J. R. Zoellin, escorted the young ladies to the Church of the Wayfarer last Wednesday where they were greeted by Dr. K. Fillmore Gray, pastor of the Church.

The Brownies were laden with cartons of clothing which they have been collecting to send to little girls in Korea as a Christmas gift. The clothing, augmented by Church of the Wayfarer contributions will be sent by the Church in plenty of time for a merry Christmas.

After thanking his young visitors Dr. Gray showed them pictures of Korean children which he himself had taken during his visit there.

Brownie Scouts in Troop 2121, River School are: Nina Alberts, Sarah Bell, Jennifer Bestor, Debbie Childers, Lisa Graham, Robbie Lou Graham, Jae Kinion, Heidi Lawitzke, Loree Lawitzke and Elizabeth Mullinx.

Also, Claudia Spencer, Sherrie Welchner, Mary Beth White, Kitty White and Sylvia Zoellin.

Church of The Wayfarer Controversy Happily Settled; Takes Original Dedication

In reverting to its original dedication, (1904) as a Methodist Episcopal Church, the Carmel of the Wayfarer has happily terminated a period of controversy and a divided membership.

At a meeting held last Tuesday evening, the motion was carried 228-18 that the main church property and buildings at Lincoln and 7th "continue as a Methodist Episcopal church."

Founded 59 years ago on land deeded "in trust for the use and benefit of the ministry and membership of the Methodist Church," the Church of the Wayfarer became identified through the years as "non-denominational" through its admirable "open door" policy to Urotestants, local and visiting, who found no church of their specific denomination in the area.

Through the years the non-Methodist group has greatly increased, and the Methodist-Episcopal identification of its ministry was dimmed.

Happily, with the great satisfaction of all concerned, the long drawn-out "controversy" has ended on a warm note of Christian friendliness on both sides.

Plans are already in the making to form a non-profit corporation to appraise two properties owned by the Church of the Wayfarer, the equivalent of their fair market price to be paid in cash, to the community church group for the purpose of building a church of their own.

Highway Repairs

Motorists on State Sign Route 1 (Cabrillo Highway) will experience slight delays at Lime Kiln Creek, 2 miles south of Lucia in Monterey County as bridge repairs will require "ONE-WAY TRAFFIC" conditions for approximately 60 days.

Traffic will be controlled by signals and flagmen, and motorists are advised to observe extreme caution when passing through the 300-yard construction area.

Feathers . . . From the Shaft

No. 30

By Harry the Fletcher

A most appalling fact, I note, has lately come to hand about the men we choose by vote to regulate our land. The only thing we know about the men we pick to rule, is their ability to shout the hind leg off a mule.

Consider, 'round the world, just who are now the ruling powers, like Kruschchev, Castro, Tito, too, can talk for endless hours. Our candidates we rate the same, and all we ask from each — not what they've done to make a name — but can they make a speech.

So, who's to blame for what we see — the blunders, waste, the Red? It's we the people — you and me — the brainwashed and the bleid.

One ray of hope we've overlooked — our mothers and our wives, who even gabbled while they cooked and ruled our little lives. I've never won an argument against a woman yet, so, let them run the government — they'd do the job, I'll bet.

If women ran the world, you know, they'd clean it up, right pert; but who'd be left to mend and sew the buttons on my shirt?

Well Balanced First Symphony of Season Climaxed With Reception

If one is to review in a justifiable way the merits of a musical event, one would seek an appropriate seating place within the music hall. This reviewer did not have that opportunity while reviewing the Monterey County Symphony last Tuesday evening; however, I was very happy to be in the very first row and within hearing distance of Conductor John Gosling welcoming the new Concert Master, Mr. David Abel. Indeed a fine gesture.

The eighteenth season of the Monterey County Symphony opened before a capacity audience with a well-programed concert which was enthusiastically received.

The opening selection was "Overture to the Marriage of Figaro" by the world's most imaginative example of a genius, Mozart. The orchestra had a quality of sound that was full, rich and much concerned, the special color effects of the old comedia dell' arte. At this point one immediately could appreciate the recent new extension of which will be covered by the new gift from and for the memory of Mrs. Grace Howden. This concert was dedicated to her memory in recognition of her efforts as founder of the Monterey County Symphony Association.

From the classic era we were projected into the modern musical world of harmonic action of Wallingford Riegger and his "Dance Rhythms for Orchestra, Opus 58." The orchestra handled this work with an elan percussively accented throughout and with classic, romantic string compliments. All of the orchestral sections projected their very best in response to Conductor John Gosling's baton.

Soon afterward the Harty arrangement of Handel's, "Suite from the Music for the Royal Fireworks" was heard. The Overture introduced a strong and pervasive cadence harmoniously flowing. It is very difficult to say which one of the four movements was most outstanding. As in other compositions, Handel very adroitly amalgamated all of the sections of the orchestra and one must extend compliments to Conductor Gosling's excellent brass tutorage. With the, "Fireworks Music" of the German-born English composer, the first half of the concert was over.

At this time I decided to move

Following the "standing room only" first concert of the season of the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra last Tuesday evening, more than 200 devotees, members of the orchestra, Symphony patrons and their friends, in festive mood and attire wended their way, by car and on foot, to the Carmel Art Association Galleries at the invitation of the Symphony Guild for the traditional reception honoring Conductor John Gosling and his musicians.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. Frank G. Ringland, president of the Guild, Mrs. Janice Folsom Niebel, president-elect, Mr. H. G. Royal, president of the Monterey County Symphony Association, Inc., and Mrs. Royal, Conductor and Mrs. John Gosling, Concert Master David Abel and Mrs. Abel, and Mrs. Charles H. Trumbly.

In the beautiful galleries champagne punch and sandwiches were presented on tables exquisitely decorated and flower garlanded by William Ober, his 'gift' to the members of the orchestra. The serving of the refreshments and concoction of the punch was the 'gift' of Jack McKelvy, assistant manager of the Officers Club of the Presidio. Jack's time and know-how added much to the evening's success.

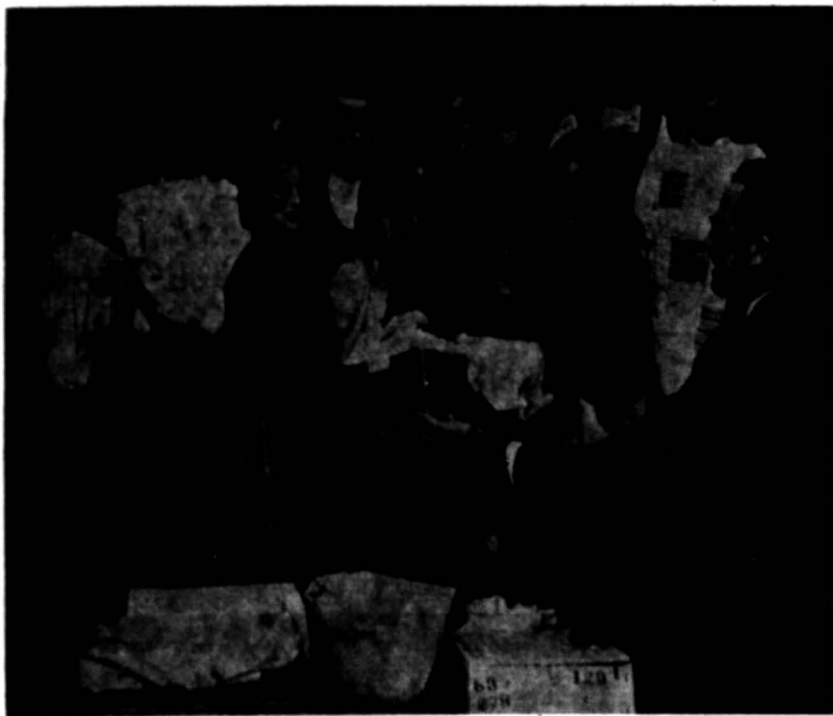

It was a gay party, the coming together of old friends, the meeting of new friends, a tribute to our musicians, a perfect sequel to John Gosling's triumphant first concert of the Symphony season, '63-'64.

Maybe You Tossed a Trifle on the Beach?

Boy Scout Cub Troopers, Pack 48, don't exactly love their Saturday morning project. They are pretty darn sure the litter bugs are not Cubs or even Scouts — they're most probably grown-ups!

The "clean-up" pictured was last Saturday's. Richard Duhring, Cub Master was on hand to encourage his 16 boys, all under 10 years old, as they gathered bag after bag of trash desecrating our beautiful golden sands.

Wind IN THE Pines

BY

Well, the great race weekend is over.

I recall other weekends when there were races, when the sound of highly tuned engines drummed an excitement into all of us and anybody who didn't have dirty hands wasn't worth speaking to.

Did I mention? I didn't go to the races. Somebody else covered them for us.

Like I said, those weekends were all racing. You couldn't even mention the weather unless you somehow got it interpreted into terms like brakes, suspension and liters . . . above all, liters.

"She's a nasty little brute, that four-banger. Two and a half liters, you know. Last week I nearly lost it screaming into a turn at four grand, coming down, just a bit more toe than heel, then I put my foot in all the way. Bloody awful the way she fair leaped out of that turn. Nearly drove right over top an MG." This kind of chatter, complete with the affected British accent, always seems to emanate from non-competitors. This is one reason I didn't go.

Then there are those who have worked themselves like slaves to get ready for the big event. Everything worked all right until they got to the track. Then they dis-runs unevenly upon reaching a certain rpm. Frantically they dismantle the engine, the ignition system, the carbs. Back together very quickly and still it doesn't help. Finally they make it and are ready to qualify. The car runs like a dream and it looks like they're going to make the first row. Then an oil line breaks and it's all over. Another reason.

My most enduring memory of racing, though, is not these things, it's not the sight of a car careening off the side of a mountain in Mexico, it's not even those haunting columns of smoke one sees in the distance. It concerns a pile of straw.

This is back in the days of the big Mexican Road Races. That was a race. Roaring over hundreds of miles of twisting, pot-holed roads at speeds over, well over a hundred miles an hour, thundering down into valleys around curves that were completely innocent of guard rails, screeching downshifts to slow for sharp right turns in the center of small villages and all the time not knowing when an ambling burro cart would be over the next rise or around the next turn.

The Mexicans were avid fans and would come for miles just to sit beside the road. Local officials would line the turns with bales of hay and straw and the fans would sit there for hours on the bales, sometimes even eating a picnic lunch. Then there would be a shout, "¡Vienen!" they're coming.

The whole thing would be over in a minute. The roar would die away in a series of echoes from the distant mountains and the crowd would melt away to begin the long walk homeward.

But it wasn't always that way. A family of five, a man, his wife and three small children had waited the long day through for the momentary flash and roars as the powerful machines went by. It was hot in the bright sun and the children were tired. The long-awaited cry was heard and it looked like the wait was over. It was. Just before the car arrived at where the family was sitting a wheel came off and the driver lost control.

The car spun once then went through the row of straw bales rear-end first. The speed was so great the car never even slowed as it went through the bales. When the straw settled back to earth it looked like it was just a pile of straw.

That's the real reason.

Yvonne's Salon
Opening Nov. 1

Yvonne, in private life Mrs. Charles H. Campbell, wife of Col. Campbell, U.S.A. retired, will open her own French Beauty Salon on November 1 in what was formerly Armand's Hairdressing Salon on Dolores street, south of Ocean.

Colonel and Mrs. Campbell, residents of Carmel for the past ten years, found Carmel quite by accident. Driving up the California coast from their home in Texas, the Campbells merely stopped for a week-end's rest — they have been here ever since.

Black haired, black eyed Yvonne is a native of Nancy, France. It was during World War II, when she was acting as an interpreter for the U.S. Army, that Colonel Campbell, attached to the Adjutant General's staff requested her help, "quite officially" Yvonne told.

Following their marriage Col. Campbell was ordered to Japan and Mrs. Campbell went along. They finally settled in Texas. It was during the Colonel's tour of duty in Korea that Yvonne studied hairdressing "for something to do."

Since coming to Carmel Yvonne has been associated with Thaddeus' Salon and Earl's Top Knot's Beauty Salon.

In planning her own Salon Yvonne says that she will still find time to join in the Colonel's hobby of stamp collecting. "His other hobbies," she relates, "fishing and painting are just not for a French girl, they are what I call masculine, non?"

Initial Service of First Baptist Church in Valley

The First Baptist Church of Carmel Valley will hold its first services at the Carmelo School this Sunday, with Rev. Loren Eastman as Pastor. Located just east of the intersection of Carmel Valley Rd. and Schulte Rd., the school will be the site of all Sunday services during the period of construction of the church's new sanctuary on property nearby.

Formerly the Evangelical Baptist Church of Monterey, the church has met for over 35 years at its Pacific St. location until recent purchase of the property by the Urban Renewal Agency of Monterey necessitated relocation.

With property purchased at the corner of Schulte and Carmel Valley Roads and construction plans completed, the church will hold a dedication service soon which will inaugurate actual construction of the first unit of the five-phase master plan.

At present, Sunday services will consist of Sunday School beginning at 9:45 a.m. A Children's Church for youngsters from sixth grade and under will be held simultaneously with the Morning Worship Service at 11:00 a.m. Following the Evening Service at 7:00 p.m. there will be get-acquainted refreshment time.

Mid-week services of prayer and bible study will be held in various homes in the Valley and will be announced each week.

Residents of the entire Carmel Valley and Peninsula are invited to attend these services.

DOUGLAS S. AIKEN takes over November 1 as sales manager of Pacific Gas and Electric Company's Coast Valleys Division, with headquarters in Salinas. He succeeds J. Galen Foster, who moved up to manager of residential sales in San Francisco. Aiken has been commercial manager of PG&E's East Bay Division. Coast Valleys includes San Benito, most of Monterey and San Luis Obispo and northern Santa Barbara counties.

The Padres Tounce San Lorenzo Cougars

by Bob Holmes

Friday night, the Carmel High School Padres remained undisputedly in first place with a 25-7 win over a tough San Lorenzo Valley team. Carmel is 4-0 in League play.

Carmel's big scoring splurge started in the second quarter as Phil Zobel passed 45 yards to Bill Stowers for a 6-0 score. The conversion failed. In the same quarter dead-eye Zobel passed to Rich Di Lorenzo for a 12-0 score. The pass play was good for 45 yds. Again the P.A.T. was no good. The second quarter saw scoring again as the tricky Zobel rambled 19 yds. to pay dirt. The conversion again failed.

San Lorenzo finally scored in half back, Pat Kelly, scored from the 9 yd. line. The score was now 18-6 favoring the Padres.

In the 4th quarter, Phil Zobel again scored as he picked off a lateral on the Cougars' 9 yd. line and lock kicked the P.A.T. The final ran 91 yds. to score. Grant Polscore was Carmel 25, San Lorenzo 7.

Offensive standouts were Phil Zobel, who was responsible for all of Carmel's scoring; Di Lorenzo, Dennis Clark, Paul Preve, Art Tracy and Bill Stammers.

Defensive stars Pollack, George Buck, Don Fairchild and John Tracy.

Carmel plays Live Oak Saturday at 2:00. Preliminary games start at 10:00 a.m.

ing in that capacity in San Francisco, San Bruno and, most recently, South San Francisco.

Hirsch was born in Water Valley, Mississippi, and attended school in Memphis, Tennessee. He and his wife, Shirley, and three children, Janet, Linda and David, all are looking forward to living on the Monterey Peninsula.

the Monterey Peninsula.

BORN MARCH 13, 1886, in Washington, D.C., Julian P. Graham came to the Monterey Peninsula in 1924. His studio, until 1944, was in the old Del Monte Hotel. For the past two decades the studio has been in Pebble Beach, within a stone's throw of Del Monte Lodge. Official photographer for Del Monte Properties, "Spike" Graham's contribution to life at the Lodge, on the Pebble Beach and Cypress Point Golf Courses and at the hunts and horse shows, went far beyond his superb photographs . . . A happy extrovert in the finest sense, an ardent sportsman, a character of highest integrity, his claim to fame was many sided. He worked hand in hand with his wife, Gwenn Campbell Graham, director of public relations for Del Monte Properties and the two were an unbeatable team, recounting in story and picture for the press 'round the world, — life at Pebble Beach where hundreds of world celebrities appear and re-appear with the seasons.

Because the entire Peninsula was his beloved country, Julian Graham has left us, in his folios of photographs, a record of beauty that "will never pass into nothingness." We pay tribute to Julian P. Graham, deceased, October 13, 1963.

The equipment was purchased at cost from William Scott of Beaumont, California, who donated his skill and time to adjusting and rebuilding it to suit the needs of the Council.

In 1962, 3897 pleasure vessels were involved in 3,085 accidents, which resulted in 1,055 deaths, according to the United States Coast Guard reports.

PLUG HEAT LEAKS IN YOUR WIGWAM NOW

(save plenty wampum this winter)

Almost every home "leaks" heat—honest Injun! ■ Some heat slips through loose-fitting doors and windows. About 16% is lost through window glass. And up to 45% escapes through uninsulated ceilings! ■ By weather-stripping and insulating now, you can prevent much of your heat loss during the winter months ahead. By keeping draperies drawn and the fireplace damper closed, you can stop still more heat loss. ■ This way you'll have a warm, wonderful wigwam every winter . . . and save heating dollars, too!

WHERE THERE'S LIFE

BY ANDRE HOPE

The First Rains of Fall
"In the night's stillness
Drop by drop on the stones
Heaven and I, our tears."

Rain! Damp, moist, wet. Water falling to earth in drops that have been condensed from the moisture in the atmosphere. A rapid falling or propulsion of many small particles or articles (Webster's Dictionary)—cats and dogs, confetti, "It isn't raining rain, you know, it's raining violets."

Rain check: that which people take when they cannot come to an event, on invitation and which catches you later in an awkward position at an inconvenient time. She has taken advantage of the weather to give herself a rain-water shampoo and a grease job. He is napping on the couch in THAT frowsty bathrobe (you know the one). The guests arrive. "Would have called but knew you'd be home on a night like this; heh-heh!"

Rainy day session: all the kids and dogs underfoot, howling! "What will we do now? Why can't we go out and play?" Why is it a youngster who cannot be wrestled away from the T.V. on a sunny day, when play could be delightful, insists on storming out in the storm to make mud?

Love: "Isn't that funny? We both just adore walking in the rain." The next day they hate each other when they discover they have a mutual case of sniffles, chills and fevers; beside which she poked him in the eye with her umbrella and his glasses being all fogged up he gallantly led her through a two-foot puddle in her new shoes. And did you ever kiss anyone in a rainstorm? Artificial respiration is suggested there-after.

Ah, rain in a city, The City—San Francisco. On the sixteenth floor of your hotel you are dressing for a gala evening. Through the rain slap-dashed windows the colors of the night life drip down to make a huge abstract in living color, even reflecting on the walls. There is an excitement about "doing" the city in a storm—sort of pioneering in plush. A dash into the taxi. Everyone is doing it. So many cabs on the street, honking and maneuvering, down-town dodge-em in one of the world's finest cosmopolitan carnivals. Follows a rapid, laughing dash from taxi to destination, in this case shall we say the elegant new Argentine Restaurant at 654 Sacramento St. Once inside you are confronted with the South American Barbeque pit, encircled with various luscious cuts of meat, slowly and juicily turning. The reservation is for later. Do you want to stop at the bar on your right? The host suggest perhaps you might care to dance; of course you do. You are conducted to an elevator which will conduct you to the third floor. He mentions that you simply speak to someone up there when you are ready to eat. The third floor is in typical South American tradition, lighted by what would seem to be senior citizen fireflies; dark, you know. The music is excellent. People obviously go here who love to dance. The terpsichore nicely blending the latin beat and the smoother steps of our delight. My companion said the drinks were excellent. As a sherry buff I could not have asked for more. Well exercised and hungry, you descend to the second floor. Accompanied by soft background music and some of the finest service with unobtrusive flourishes that you are likely to encounter, you have a choice of many fine meats, including young kid and other authentic Argentine specialties. Salads are mixed at the table and topped with a dash of pepper from a three-foot grinder which the waiter carries over his shoulder like some instrument of ceremony. We had short ribs, rare and sizzling, brought on their own private charcoal broiler—huge luscious hunks of them, with enough left over to provide a proper bowser bag for an Irish Wolfhound. Desserts are delicious and diversified and followed by Argentine coffee as black and pungent as the stormy night outside. After dinner your waiter arranges for a table on the dance floor upstairs if you so desire—and after that meal it's good therapy. (aside: no cover charge and this is the treatment you may expect, as I never make it known that I am reviewing a "joint" for publication whilst I am there).

After the last dance, a soft and drowsy descent to the outer world. The rain is no longer in the sky but lies shining on the streets. Everything and everywhere is surprised at being so clean and so sweet smelling. The moon has braved the clouds and lools in the freshened sky. The caddy says "Have a nice time, kids?" Considering the grey in your head enconced against the cushions—that's the nicest thing you've heard all day. One last wet drop falls in your hair from the hotel's awning. There you are, stars in your eyes, diamonds in your curls and the promise of the holidays ahead. That's where life is.

Opening Tomorrow Night at the Circle

The cast for Harry Kurnitz' comedy, "A Shot in the Dark," was announced this week, in preparation for tomorrow night's opening at the Golden Bough Circle Theatre. Based on Marcel Achard's Parisian hit, "L'Idiotie", the play concerns a saucy chambermaid, played by Annette Sanchez, whose affair with a Spanish chauffeur has ended in murder. An attempt to unravel the crime involves the girl's employer, a distinguished banker (Brian Jarman) and his haughty wife (Leonora DeHeer).

The examining magistrate, whose almost hopeless task is to make the wide-eyed little sexpot tell the truth about the men she has loved, will be played by Robert Floeter, Jr. Laddy Kratky is cast as his pretty young wife, and

Ray Cadena as his clerk. George A. Smith, last seen here as the Senator in "Born Yesterday," is once again a government official—this time a French one. "A Shot in the Dark" plays at 8:30 on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings for the next seven weeks.

The garnet is named after the pomegranat.

Paws for Comment

By Pheemy and Brandy
As Told to Andre Hope

Last week was National Newspaper Week. We dogs would like to salute it in memory of our puppyhoods. We once knew a white cockatoo who was so elegant she wouldn't have anything but the social pages on the bottom of her cage. We prefer meatier carpeting like the grocery ads and the funny papers.

Last week we went to a sort of dog-type department store to help our mistress pick out a collar and leash for Brandy's daughter, Champagne. Humans get a little silly about outfitting a new animal, particularly if it happens to be a female. Now, we wanted to be sure that she got something that was just plain, comfy and functional. You wouldn't believe what they sell in those places. They have "his" and "her" doggy cologne. There were fake leopard skin coats (wonder how you capture a fake leopard). Also on display were shorty nighties, rain boots, jeweled hair bows, formal stiff white collars and tiaras, sunglasses and pearl encrusted comb and brush sets. The most astonishing thing of all was a hair dryer. It's like a big rubber sack which they pop you into and then they plug you into the wall. Such an indignity. What fun is it to be given a bath (which is no fun) if you can't hop out of the tub and shake the water all over the human who committed this indignity on your person? And you can get perfectly dry by simply rolling in the nearest patch of dust. So much more practical.

We finally made a choice from the collar display. Well, Champy is very small and very feminine and she is sort of elegant, so we chose a nice plain leather collar for her. It did happen to be gold, but you could hardly notice that because of the pearls and rhinestones all over it. The leash was leather, too... gold too. Guess we're just a couple of doting dachshies.

crowd watched as mishap and mechanical failure opened the way for Dave MacDonald and his King Cobra to roar through from far back in the pack to a well-deserved victory.

For the most part the day went to American drivers and Anglo-American machinery. MacDonald, A. J. Foyt, Jim Hall, and most of the remaining front runners were Americans competing against the best that international racing has to offer including present world champion Jim Clark. The car that did the trick was the potent King Cobra which is a Cooper chassis mounting a Ford engine, a two-seater version of the car that almost won at Indianapolis.

The under-two-liter prize went to American expatriate Tim Mayer driving a Lotus powered by an English Ford engine. Local drivers Don Wester and Ed Leslie followed Richie Ginther to take a creditable third and fourth in the under-two-liter race.

The local boy who made it big, however, was Charlie Parsons who took first in both the amateur and professional formula junior races.

In the production class, this year's news makers did it again with Allen Grant piloting his A.C. Cobra to first place and Ron Bucknum in an MGB leaving Porsches, Corvettes and XKE's by the wayside to take second.

If mechanical failure took a heavy toll of the competing cars, it certainly took a heavier one among the thousands of vehicles that chugged and snorted at 5 miles-per-hour (and this must set some sort of record) so that their passengers could enjoy their main interest in life—fast moving cars.

Stanley Considers Another Hotel

In announcing his decision to terminate his contract as managing lessee of Carmel's La Playa Hotel after 11 years, Ashton Stanley stated, "My decision was reached after much thought and in conference with, not only the hotel's owner, Fred Godwin, but also with Mrs. Stanley who has given so much of her time and talent to the hotel's social atmosphere and to the improvement of its decor through the past decade.

"I have long felt that while the La Playa is today one of the most beautiful hotels on the Peninsula, it does not, under the existing terms of lease, warrant all year 'round operation.

"It is with regret that I leave La Playa, but it certainly does not mean that Mrs. Stanley and I are leaving the Peninsula. On the contrary, our home is in Pebble Beach and my sights are set, with new and larger operation, right in this area." Mr. Stanley indicated that he did not feel ethically justified in revealing his future plans in hotel management while still at his desk in La Playa, which he will leave officially November 1.

During his years of La Playa management, Mr. Stanley has wrought many changes in the 80-room hotel, installation of the swimming pool, the dramatically beautiful cocktail lounge and the Lanai Room, scene of many of Carmel's memorable social functions.

Mr. Stanley is, to use a well-worn descriptive phrase, "a born hotel man." He came to the Peninsula at nine years of age when his father became manager of the old Del Monte Hotel of international fame.

Ashton's claim to fame as a host was established with his management of the Ambassador in Los Angeles, and as managing director of the Hotel Del Coronado in San Diego.

Expert and experienced in hotel management, Ashton Stanley as a person, convivial and friendly, has earned the warm friendship of Peninsula residents as well as that of hundreds of our distinguished visitors. It is gratifying to know that he and his vivacious and charming wife, Irene, will remain here. Their future plans will be welcome news.

tles, toads (ugh), birds, fish, chipmunks squirrels, hamsters and mice. About those mice, a friend of our mistress, who is an army major, was charmed with them. They only cost a dollar, but he said he could have a million bucks worth of fun with a couple of them. We didn't quite understand it. Seems he is just back from overseas and is taking some treatments at the hospital and there is this nurse with a needle. Hmmm. Next week we would like to talk further about buying pets, as Christmas is getting near. Meanwhile, if you have a story about your special friend you would like to tell us, please write.

Concerning Newspaper Week, as we are columnists, we hope you didn't forget to take a couple of gay dogs to lunch!

The SUR COAST

By Elizabeth Fuller Jones

It's a jubilant student body and teacher at the little one-room school house nestled in at the foot of the Santa Lucias, near the entrance to Palo Colorado Canyon. Just enrolled are seven new students, which swells the total enrollment to 16. When the school year opened last month, teacher-principal, Mrs. Nancy Bottero was much concerned when only nine children were registered for the six grades at this unique country school, enveloped as it is in the dramatic beauty of this coastal area. The Marsh family came to the area from New York and have enrolled twins, Christine and Anthony, in the fourth grade and James in the first. The three Morgenrath children, formerly of Big Sur, have enrolled in three grades: Celia in the sixth, Tara in third and Jali in the first. The Norman Godbe's of Bixby Creek, have enrolled their little daughter "Becky" as a first-grader.

For some time Mrs. Bottero has hoped to increase the school library, and now with increased enrollment, plans are unfolding whereby an all-school project may help to bring about this much desired, and much-needed addition to the school.

Artist-Rancher Edward Branson, Jr. and his family of the El Sur Ranch in Big Sur, took a week's vacation in the northern part of the state, a vacation designed especially for their three small children, Brian, Warren and Laurie. Their eldest, Aaron, a first-grader at Captain Cooper Elementary School, stayed with friends so he could keep his good attendance record at school. Among the new and exciting experiences were train rides in the Santa Cruz mountains and a day at the zoo in San Francisco.

Prior to their vacation the Bransons completed an addition of a living room and bedroom to their home, beautifully situated in a broad sycamore- and oak-filled canyon on the sprawling, El Sur Ranch. The garden is filled with a profusion of flowers, and the picture window of the new living room looks out upon it and beyond to the golden hills and the sea. The design for the new rooms was done by Mr. Branson, and the attractive new unit was constructed by General Contractor Frank Trotter of Big Sur. The living room is paneled with mahogany, lightly stained to reveal the fine grain of the wood. An unusual treatment of the fireplace is louvered pine panels, stained with a tinge of green, that come to the top of the Franklin stove placed on a raised hearth. The room has somewhat the feeling of a trophy room, for on one wall are two mounted deer and a wild boar brought from the high country of the ranch some years ago. On the floor is a decorative rug, a mountain lion, one of many captured in the rugged Santa Lucias.

When Donald "Dick" Schrock, Big Sur general contractor, brought home a thin piece of sheet copper, a material used for flashing, he suggested to Mrs. Schrock that she might like to make something out of it. It wasn't long before that piece and many more were formed into a series of the animals of the Big Sur country, etched onto the copper by artist Mrs. Mina Schrock. The first was a large piece, that of a hawk, and a number of smaller ones including the ubiquitous raccoon, a rat, a skunk and others. This artist has also produced portraits on copper, but she likes best to create animals and creatures of the woods because they seem to lend themselves so well to the color of the metal used.

Mrs. Schrock came to Big Sur with her husband and four children, Christine and Mark Sullivan and Mina and Donald "Ricky" Schrock, a little over four years ago, after a very successful career as color consultant for the interior decorating firm of C.

● Actor Boris Karloff and Mrs. Karloff, here for a week of rest and relaxation at Hofas House, were caught up in a whirl of entertainment by their many friends on the Peninsula. Among those who feted Mr. Karloff was his long time professional friend, Jean Arthur, with whom he appeared in Peter Pan many years ago, with Miss Arthur in the starring role. Mr. Karloff last appeared on the Peninsula in the Wharf Theatre's all-professional production of "On Borrowed Time."

State College, Charles McClelland, professor international relations, Institute for Research of International Behavior at San Francisco State College and Robert North of Stanford University's political science department. The seminar will include a discussion of current peace research at local universities and by the Committee for the Application of the Behavioral Sciences to the Strategies of Peace (ABSSOP). Ruth Warshawsky to Appear at the Geary

On tour with the production of "Seideman and Son" in which she plays a major role, Ruth Warshawsky is nearing "home". The New York comedy is scheduled to play the Geary Theatre in San Francisco, Nov. 25 to Dec. 8.

Wife of the late world renowned painter, Abel Warshawsky, Ruth who deserted the professional stage at the time of her marriage, enjoyed starring roles in local little theater productions of Monterey Peninsula through the years of her residence in Monterey. A talented actress and a hostess of rare charm, she has been missed by her many friends who are planning to see "Seideman and Son" in the city.

Boatwright Delights P. G. Audience

At the second presentation of the Monterey Peninsula Concert Association, Mr. McHenry Boatwright, baritone, returned to delight his listeners with a varied program in Pacific Grove last night which allowed him to display much versatility and polish. Boatwright is a young baritone who made a decided impression on peninsulites recently with his singing in the Bach Festival's presentation of "Saul" in 1961.

He has a big, smooth-grained voice though some of the volatility escaped him in his English versions, i.e., Guglielmo's aria from "Così fan tutti" by Mozart. He watches his vocal diction very closely and at times to a point of distraction.

Handel's, "Te Deum," was expertly offered and this reviewer would not like to neglect mentioning that in my estimation this rogation song along with the "Boris Godunov," were the outstanding highlights. As the tormented Boris, Boatwright demonstrated his dramatic and technical competence overflowing.

His interpretation of the numerous art-songs were examples of fine poetic creations which musicians such as Caldara, "Alma del Core," and Schumann's "Widmung" and also the two Brahms lied or could adroitly work with musically. Here Boatwright used a delicate beauty and was inviting realistic treatment.

In the remainder of the varied program of contemporary songs and two spirituals, one is able to detect a showmanship showing his experience on television.

He returned to an insistent audience rendering numerous popular Negro spirituals and an excellent, "I Got Plenty of Nuttin'."

First Symphony

(Continued From Page One) elsewhere in the auditorium to see if there would possibly be a definite audio advantage, I believe there was. Dvorak's "Symphony No. 5 in E Minor" (from the New World) was again in much favor with the audience. Up to this point we had been provided with musical examples of the new, modern sonority effects, as well as those of the Baroque and Classic periods. Yes, Dvorak may have borrowed freely, but he also had the Bohemian ability to enhance what he may have borrowed into unique ideas no longer recognizable as might possibly belonging to someone else.

In the adagio, Allegro, Molto, the orchestra lent itself unselfishly to allow the principals to carry forth the transitional subject clearly and fully amplified. In the second movement the unmistakable personality of the American Negro Spiritual carried by the English horn and the oboe over the sedate harmonies of the strings which were especially excellent. And one must include that the episode awakened full beauty.

It is my hope that Boatwright will for sure, soon be adorning the stages of leading opera houses of the world.
